SAY GERMANY HAS RESOURCES

Dawes Experts Recognize Her Obligation to Pay.

PROPOSES A FOREIGN LOAN

Revision of Financial Provisions of Versailles Treaty Virtually Recommended by the Committee—Report Omits Mention of Ruhr, but Says French and Belgians Must Take Hands Off Industries.

Paris, April 10.—Revision of financial provisions of the Versailles treaty virtually is proposed by the report of the Dawes committee of experts to the reparations commission.

There was submitted at the same time the report of a second experts committee, headed by Reginald McKenna, dealing with German wealth abroad and the means for its return.

The Dawes report included the following recommendations: Creation of a bank of emission to issue paper money for Germany and handle the reparations account; the taking over of German railways by a company which will run them for the benefit of both Germany and her creditors; a foreign loan of 800,000,000 gold marks to stabilize Germany's currency and take care of her immediate treaty obligations; obtaining reparations payments from sale of railway and industrial bonds, and from revenue from monopolies and luxuries by making Germany pay taxes as high as those in any other creditor country, but no more; a sliding scale of reparations payments, starting at 1,000,000,000 gold marks the first year and increasing as Germany prospers, and France and Belgium to release their economic hold on the Ruhr, but may retain their armies of occupation.

No Moratorium. Germany is not to receive a moratorium, but the committee says "we are satisfied that neither by reduction of expenditures nor by increase in receipts can Germany (in 1923-25) be expected to provide out of her budget resources for any peace treaty payment to the allies."

Hope is expressed that during the period of "relief," expenditures on unemployment in Germany will exhibit a notable decrease as well as expenditures on the army.

"It has been considered that if for two years the budget is relieved from peace treaty charges and a stable currency is re-established," the report says, "Germany ought, in 1926, to be making rapid strides toward complete recovery and should in three years, by 1928, reach a normal economic condition."

Germany is not to have an external loan to meet ordinary deficits during the transition period. "External money is indeed an essential part of our scheme to create confidence, upon which the whole success of the scheme depends," the report admits. Part of a loan which the committee proposes, would be devoted to "substantial contributions" towards Germany's external debts.

In brief the Dawes report recognizes obligation of Germany to pay and declares that she has resources with which to pay, but insists that she must have her hands free to exploit her economic resources; carefully omits mention of the Ruhr, but makes it plain that the French and Belgians must satisfy themselves by leaving garrisons in the Ruhr, if they see fit, but must take their hands off the Ruhr and Rhineland railroads and the Ruhr industries; proposes to establish sound money, the first prerequisite to the payment of reparations, and the establishment of a new gold bank issue with 400,000,000 gold marks capital, and fixes reparations payments on a sliding scale, running from 110,000,000 gold marks in 1926 to 2,500,000,000 in 1934.

Liquor Seized. New York, April 10.—Prohibition agents seized assorted liquors and alcohol valued at $100,000 in a three-story warehouse here. The building, on the first floor of which is a garage, was honeycombed with vaults, protected by heavy steel doors, in which the agents found 500 cases of rye and Scotch whisky and 500 cases of alcohol. They arrested Harold Feuer, owner of the warehouse, and Jordan Lippner, both of Yonkers.

Stinnes Seriously Ill. Berlin, April 10.—Hugo Stinnes, German capitalist, is seriously ill at his home here. He was operated on for gallstones March 22. He collapsed following a second operation last Saturday and grew steadily worse.

MAL S. DAUGHERTY

Brother of Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

WOMAN RECEIVES PAY

Industrial Commission Decides That Boxing Is Work.

Columbus, April 10.—In the opinion of the state industrial commission boxing is work. The commission has decided to pay the medical bill of Mrs. Gertrude Davison when she broke her arm during a pugilistic exhibition last November. Mrs. Davison was a member of a show company, and she was ordered by the manager to take part in a boxing exhibition, which was given as an added feature during an engagement in Cincinnati.

When the claim was first presented to the workmen's compensation division, the issue of whether or not she was entitled to compensation was continued until investigations were made. The commission ruled that in the boxing exhibitions Mrs. Davison was a casual worker, and as such entitled to have the medical bills paid from the state insurance funds, but not entitled to any other financial relief.

WOULD KEEP NATION IN PATH OF JUSTICE

Attorney General Harlan Stone Announces His Policy.

Washington, April 10.—Harlan F. Stone, the new attorney general, announced as his policy on assuming office, the "keeping of the nation in the straight path of justice under the law."

In a formal statement Stone said that he had accepted the appointment because it presents an opportunity to further the cause of clean and efficient government under the leadership and with the firm support of the president. He regarded the call as a public duty, he added. He proposed, he said, to make the constitution and the laws "the shield of innocence, but the swift avenger of guilt."

"It is the duty of the United States to enforce the laws of the United States. It will be my purpose to perform that duty without fear or favor and in a manner worthy of the great office to which I have been called. I shall take up this work at once. It will be my purpose to keep the laws from being violated, but to punish violations when they occur. I shall undertake to maintain the department of justice upon a standard of the highest efficiency which will make the constitution and laws of the United States the shield of innocence, but the swift avenger of guilt."

Workers' Appeal Heard. Philadelphia, April 10.—Appeals of System Federation No. 90, shopcrafts organization, and the board of adjustment of unionized railway clerks, against dismissal of their suits to compel the Pennsylvania railroad to recognize rulings of the railroad labor board in wage disputes, were held under advisement by Federal Judges Woolley, Davis and Ebdine. The suits were dismissed by Federal Judge Dickinson on the ground that the federal courts had no authority to compel the railroad management to comply with the railroad labor board's decisions.

Die From Effects of Gas. Ravenna, O., April 10.—Clyde Reed, 28, ex-service man, died at his home near Ravenna from effects of gas at the front in Belgium. Reed was cited for bravery.

SENATE TO PROBE WHEELER CASE

Montana Solon Claims He Was "Framed" in Indictments.

CHAIR TO NAME COMMITTEE

Wheeler Charged With Unlawful Acceptance of Retainer Fee as an Attorney in Connection With Procurement of Oil Leases From the Interior Department—Makes Complete Denial of Allegations.

Washington, April 10.—Charges by Senator Wheeler of Montana that he had been "jobbed" in indictments returned against him at Great Falls, Mont., will be investigated by the senate.

At Wheeler's request the investigating committee will be appointed by the chair, "so there can be no complaint of prejudice," he said.

Senator Wheeler was indicted for alleged unlawful acceptance of a retainer fee as an attorney in connection with the procurement of oil leases from the interior department.

Wheeler said in his speech he had been informed that the Republican national committee several days ago knew he was to be indicted. Department of justice sleuths have been investigating his history for months, he declared. He made a complete denial of all the charges and insinuations that have been made against him since he began the investigation which preceded resignation of Attorney General Daugherty. "This was done solely for the purpose of injuring me and detracting from the work of our committee, which has unearthed a conspiracy in the shadow of the dome of this capitol," Wheeler said.

The Montana senator told of several attempts he charged had been made to "call him off" in his investigation.

"Shortly after the investigation started the Republican national committee made an attack on me as a protector of I. W. W.'s," he said. "They have sent their miserable sleuths to Montana to frame a member of the United States senate. I am not asking for sympathy. I am able to take care of myself, but I want the senate to know the truth."

The senator said he incurred the displeasure of large financial interests of Montana by voting for Senator Walsh of Montana for senator in the state legislature.

Trained by Sleuths. Wheeler said when he first began the investigation of Attorney General Daugherty reports came to him from Montana that the Burns detective agency and others were investigating him. He was informed, he said, that an alleged connection "between myself and Gordon Campbell was being especially investigated." Campbell was named as a party to the alleged conspiracy in the grand jury indictment.

Wheeler said that he agreed to represent Campbell in the state courts for a yearly retainer of $10,000 in 1923. He was elected in 1922. "I received a retainer of $2,000 by check, went to Montana and wrote a brief in the receivership case. We won the case. Afterwards I think Campbell paid me something like $2,000 to look after some more cases. I have never appeared before the interior department for Mr. Campbell or any one else. I never appeared as an attorney before any of the government departments."

Senator Hefflin (Dem., Ala.) said that immediately after the special committee reports to the senate he will demand that the president "summarily dismiss the district attorney who brought his indictment about."

JOHNSON MEN TO MEET

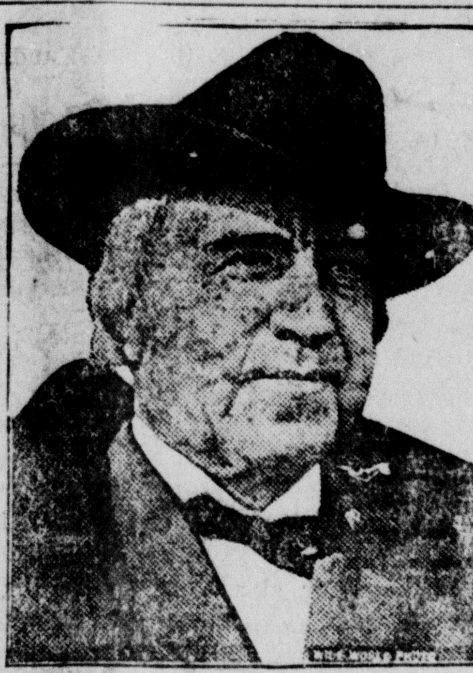

Senator May Decide to Withdraw as a Candidate in Primaries.

Washington, April 10.—It is reported that a conference will be held here Friday between Senator Hiram Johnson and his managers throughout the country to determine whether Johnson will continue as a candidate in the Ohio primaries. State Senator Bender, his Ohio manager, has been invited to attend, it is said.

In view of Johnson's reverses the past few days in Michigan, Nebraska and Illinois, serious question has been raised in the opinion of his friends as to the advisability of a further campaign for delegates in Ohio and elsewhere. Senator Johnson refused to confirm or deny rumors that he had quit the presidential race as a result of his defeats in the middle western primaries.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Teachers Seek Legislation. Columbus, April 10.—Appointment of a committee of the educational council of the Ohio State Teachers' association for the purpose of making a study of tenure, with a report on the principles which should be embodied in a bill to be presented at the next session of the general assembly, was announced at the offices of the association. The report of the committee must be approved by the educational council and the representative assembly, the business branch of the association, before it will be submitted to the general assembly.

To Pay Teachers' Salaries. Urbana, O., April 10.—Salaries due public school teachers will be paid out of a loan by a private citizen. The teachers will then sue the board of education, which will confess judgment. The judgments will then be assigned to the aforesaid citizen to cover the loans. Under the law, the board holds, it can create next fall a special judgment fund to be collected from taxes next year and which fund would be outside the regular school taxes.

Pardoned Conditionally. Columbus, April 10.—A conditional pardon was granted by Governor Donahy to Arthur Pelton, sent to the penitentiary by Coshocton authorities for failure to provide for his three minor children. The Knox county children's home officials made application for the pardon and it was granted on condition Pelton pay a stipulated sum weekly to the support of the children, who are in the home.

Mail Man Rescues Girl. Toledo, April 10.—John Kiene, 36, a letter carrier, delayed delivery of the mail a few minutes while he went into the home of Miss Geneva Irving, 16, and fought a hand to hand battle with a man who had been annoying the girl. Kiene stabbed the intruder several times with a small knife, but the stranger escaped.

Phone Rate Boost Suspended. Columbus, April 10.—Increased telephone rates upon unification of service at Massillon were suspended for 120 days by the public utilities commission following a protest from city officials of Massillon. Increased rates were to have become effective May 1. Hearing on the proposal will be held May 14.

Stalled Motor Blamed. Dayton, O., April 10.—A stalled motor was blamed at McCook field here for the death of Lieutenant Theodore Van Veghten, stunt flyer, who was killed when his plane fell 500 feet within McCook field. He was taking off for an exhibition flight.

Convicted of Manslaughter. Marion, O., April 10.—John Gibson, colored, was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the killing of James Watson, also colored, in a quarrel last September here.

Two Killed at Crossing. Toledo, April 10.—James Jenkins and wife were killed at a crossing near this city when their auto was demolished by a train. Jenkins resided at Adrian, Mich.

Tax Deduction Involved. Columbus, April 10.—Constitutionality of an Ohio statute under which federal income and excess profits tax payments have been deducted from credits in personal tax returns to the county treasurer, is at issue in a suit allowed to enter for review by the supreme court. In a Cleveland case the lower courts held a firm was justified in deducting $34,000, paid to the federal government, from the county tax return. The state tax commission argues that the law does not permit such a deduction, and it is does, the statute is unconstitutional.

OPINIONS AIRED BY DIPLOMATS

Dawes Finding Would Settle Reparations Problem.

KEY TO ADJUSTMENT SEEN

Officials at National Capital Hoping the Proposals Will Be Found Acceptable to the Allied Powers—Acceptance Would Mean Much to France, Germany and the World, It Is Held—Essence of Comment.

Washington, April 10.—Acceptance of the proposals of the Dawes committee of experts means probable settlement of the reparations problem that has kept Europe in turmoil since the signing of the Versailles treaty.

This is the opinion of diplomats and government officials here. Rejection of the report by the reparations commission, it is felt, would not take away its value, since it will have served to enlighten public opinion and have given the world the advantage of an impartial opinion. Officials are hoping that the report will be found acceptable to the allied powers and that in them the key to the settlement of the reparations tangle will be discovered.

A state department official said: "We earnestly hope that this excellent piece of work will mean the solution of this serious problem of reparations. It is a governmental arrangement, however, and we can not express governmental approval of it."

To Germany acceptance of the proposals would mean relief for two years from reparations payments; these to be taken care of by a foreign loan and a tax on industries which at present are nonproductive; return of economic control of the Ruhr and Rhineland, though the French army of occupation may remain; stabilization of her currency by means of a loan of 800,000,000 gold marks and creation of a gold bank of emission, and a return of German capital that has "flooded the country" with collapse of the mark.

To France it would assure priority in reparations payments insofar as the cost of her armies of occupation are concerned; slowly but steadily increasing payments by Germany under allied supervision, and protection against an adverse exchange or trade balance that might result from incalculable German payments.

The proposals also carry provision for payment of the costs of the American army that was four years on the Rhine.

STATE'S APPEAL GRANTED

Case of Assault, Involving Walking Delegate, to Be Reviewed.

Columbus, April 10.—Ohio supreme court granted an application for review in the appeal of the state from the judgment of the Hamilton county appellate court in reversing conviction of Jacob Reichert on an indictment of an assault to kill. Reichert, with two other men, was charged with assaulting two workmen employed by the L. R. Marks company at Cincinnati during a strike. It was shown that Reichert was a walking delegate for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and that he hired two men to keep men who did not go out on strike from going to work. It was testified by the confederates that he paid them $35 for each man thus kept away from the factory. The common pleas court convicted Reichert, but the appellate court reversed on the ground that the indictment should have alleged assault and battery only. It was testified that the workmen were beaten with blackjacks.

Southwell to Be Quizzed. Cleveland, April 10.—George W. Southwell, secretary of the dry maintenance league, will testify before the county grand jury investigating liquor law enforcement here. In an address, Southwell declared that judges attended booze parties, which fact, he said, was known to the prosecutor's office. Mr. Southwell also expressed the hope that Governor Donahy would investigate rumors that "activities in Cuyahoga county against justices of the peace is a pre-conceived plan to eliminate these uncontrolled offices so that Cleveland can be a wide-open town for the republican convention in June."

George Prescott, who slashed his throat with a razor when arrested in connection with the murder of Mrs. Fern Thase at Pittsburgh, confessed, the police reported, that he killed the woman when she told him of plans to go away with another man.

LAW VIOLATIONS ALLEGED

Assistant Attorney General Griswold Files Report.

Toledo, April 10.—H. H. Griswold, assistant attorney general, charges in his report that many practices, probably amounting to violations of the criminal statutes of Ohio, were engaged in by Lucas county justices' courts in their handling of liquor cases. Griswold and his assistants for several weeks have been investigating conditions in the Lucas county courts. This investigation followed sensational charges made by Federal Judge John M. Killits. Scores of witnesses were examined and books of the various justices' courts and courts of mayors of Lucas county villages were scanned. It is expected that this evidence will be considered by the grand jury here.

Troops Patrolling Scene. Pineville, Ky., April 10.—Troops are patrolling the turbulent Straight creek mine section, following 24 hours of intermittent sniping and outbreaks of violent rifle fire. Practically every woman and child has left the camp. Forest fires, alleged to have been started by union miners, are still raging, the whole mountain range being a solid sheet of flame.

Witness Accuses Guffey. Washington, April 10.—George W. Storck, department of justice accountant, testifying before the senate Daugherty committee, said he had worked on the proceeding against Joseph F. Guffey, a Democratic leader in Pennsylvania and former director of sales for the alien property custodian. He said he "indicted Guffey" after an investigation. Reading from his examination of Guffey's books, Storck said there was a "shortage" in interest amounting to $395,000. An indictment for embezzlement was returned against Guffey, but "nothing done on it," the witness said, and the shortage was "made good" in March, 1921, after various negotiations between the alien property custodian and the treasury department.

MILLER DENIES STORY

Says He Received No Money at the Chicago Convention.

Washington, April 10.—Testifying before the senate committee William H. Miller, attorney of Columbus, O., denied that he had received $25,000 from the late Jake Hamon to pay the expenses of Harding headquarters at the Congress hotel in Chicago during the 1920 convention. Miller also denied that he was a pre-convention manager in Oklahoma for the Harding candidacy. "I collected no monies nor paid any bills," Miller said.

When testimony of J. B. French, Oklahoma City, who quoted Hamon as having made the statement that he gave $25,000 to "Bill" Miller, was read to him, Miller replied: "I received no monies at the Chicago convention from Hamon for any purpose whatsoever. I handled no funds."

Asked by Walsh who did handle the funds, Miller said: "I assume Mr. Daugherty."

J. F. Baughn of Texas declared that Jake Hamon told him that he "signed the check that nominated Harding for president."

Lesson for April 13
ELIJAH AND THE STRUGGLE WITH BAAL

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 18:17-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—"No man can serve two masters."—Matt. 6:24.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Hears Elijah's Prayer.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Elijah on Mt. Carmel.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Conflict between Jezebel and Elijah.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Elijah Won the Victory.

I. Elijah's Message to Ahab (vv. 17-18).

When Jezebel became the wife of King Ahab, she waged a savage warfare against God's prophets, killing all she could find, thus seeking to abolish the true religion and set up idolatry instead. Elijah suddenly appeared, announcing the suspension of moisture (1 Kings 17:1) as a judgment upon the people for their idolatry. He sounded three striking notes in his message:

(1) "As the Lord God of Israel liveth"—He knew that he represented the living God, therefore did not fear.
(2) "Before whom I stand"—Because Elijah stood before God, he could stand before Ahab.

(3) "There shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word."—Drought was the punishment for idolatry (Deut. 11:16, 17).

II. A Challenge to Baal Worship (1 Kings 18:17-46).

As soon as Elijah had delivered his message concerning the drought, he retired from the king's sight, while the penalty of the king's sins should be visited upon the land.

1. Elijah Shows Himself to Ahab (vv. 17, 18).

(1) Ahab's question (v. 17). His aim in this question was no doubt to intimidate Elijah, to awe him into submission. The devil goes about as a roaring lion (1 Pet. 5:8).

(2) Elijah's answer (v. 18). He denied the charge and boldly declared that the calamity which had befallen the nation was caused by the idolatry of Ahab and his family.

2. The Bold Challenge (vv. 19-24).

(1) The people assemble (vv. 19, 20). At the urgent request of Elijah the king convened the people.

(2) The ringing call to decision (vv. 21-24).

a. The question asked (v. 21). Many of the people had not wholly forsaken God. They attempted to worship both God and Baal.

b. The silence of the people (v. 21). This may have been because of fear of the king, or ignorance, for many were of the opinion that to be religious was the only thing necessary, irrespective of the being worshiped.

c. The method of decision (vv. 22-24). Two sacrifices were to be provided, one to be offered to Baal, the other to God. The one who answered by fire was to be the God.

3. The Test Applied (vv. 25-39).

(1) Offering by the prophets of Baal (vv. 25-29). Elijah gave the prophets of Baal the first opportunity to prove to the people as to whether Baal was a real god.

(2) The offering by Elijah (vv. 30-39).

a. People invited near (v. 30). There are no secrets in God's worship.

b. The altar repaired (vv. 30-32). Elijah took twelve stones representing the united nation.

c. The offering on the altar (vv. 33-35). After the bullock was in place he had four barrels of water three times emptied upon the sacrifice and the wood so as to fill the trench about the altar.

d. Elijah's prayer (vv. 36, 37). This was a model prayer.

(a) It was based upon covenants (v. 36). All real prayer rests upon covenant relationships.

(b) Its object was God's exaltation (v. 36). Elijah was jealous for God's glory, but the only thing that he asked for himself was to be known as God's servant.

(c) It was for the salvation of the people (v. 37). His heart yearned after Israel. He wanted them to come to know God.

e. The result (vv. 38, 39).

(a) The fire of the Lord fell and consumed, not only the sacrifice, but the wood, stones and dust, even licking up the water in the trenches.

(b) The people fell on their faces and confessed that the Lord was the God.

4. The Execution of Baal's Prophets (v. 40). Israel's government was a theocracy. God was their King. Idolatry was treason against the King.

Says Prehistoric Birds of Kansas Had Teeth

Birds once had teeth, but it was a long, long time ago. In fact, it was in that period of the earth's history when much of North America was covered by broad, shallow seas that were dotted with low and almost barren islands. And upon these islands rested some of the strangest of all the thousands of odd creatures that have lived in past ages—birds that could not walk, and that had long beaks, armed with sharp teeth. These birds, described in Science and Invention by Carroll Lane Fenton, department of paleontology, University of Michigan, are known from their skeletons, which have been preserved and turned into stone in the chalk beds of western Kansas.

Hesperornis, the western bird, as this ancient dweller of Kansas has been called, measured nearly five feet from tip to tip of his beak to the tip of his toes. In shape he was a good deal like the black and white loon, or hell diver of modern rivers and lakes, but, unlike that bird, he swam by means of his legs and feet alone, never trying to use wings.

Indeed, he could hardly have done so, for after ages of disuse, his wings had disappeared entirely, and there remained but a few bones to show where they once had been. But stout legs and paddle-like feet were all he needed to get about, either on the surface or below. His body was shaped like a submarine, while his neck had the driving force of a heron's. Once a fish was caught in the bird's long beak with its backwardly directed teeth, it had no chance to escape.

Preparedness

Willie was under orders never to go in swimming. And mother meant to see that he obeyed. So one day she became suspicious.

"Willie, your clothes are wet," she said. "You have been in the water again."

"Yes, mother, I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling! Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother. I jumped in first so as to be there when he fell in."

DIXIE MILLS

Can Handle All Grain Raised in This Territory - W. P. Sallady, Manager.

The Corporation Underwriters Syndicate, promoted and financed by C. C. Truax, of Columbus, purchaser of the Heffner Mills, the Crites Milling company, The Blue Ribbon Mills at Greenville; the Heffner Main street elevator and mill, the East End elevator this city, the elevators at Bell's Siding, Kinderhook, Island Road and New Holland, has been dissolved.

Mr. Truax has retired and has segregated his interests from the corporation, but has retained his interest in the Main street mill and elevator, which will be known under the name of the Maizo Mills Incorporated. C. H. Sligh will be the manager and Lawrence Warner, assistant manager.

The Underwriters Syndicate is succeeded by The Dixie Mills, which has been incorporated with a capital of $600,000. The incorporators are W. E. Halley, Columbus; Charles Herr, Greenville; W. E. Arnold, Gettysburg; W. P. Sallady, Ashville and W. H. Brubaker, Urbana.

The directors elected the following officers: President, W. E. Halley; vice president, Charles Herr; secretary John Arnold; treasurer and general manager, Park Sallady.

The general office of the company and all business transactions of the new firm will be conducted in this city. The offices will be located at the East Mill street location formerly the headquarters of the Heffner Milling company.

By the absorption of the Underwriters interest in the Crites and Heffner Mills and elevators, the Dixie Mills Syndicate become the owners of the two largest mills in Southern Ohio and are also in position to handle, thru their chain of elevators, all the grain that is raised in this territory adjacent to this city. With Mr. Sallady, as resident manager, a man who has had considerable grain elevator experience, the company is in position to make their purchase a successful venture in the commercial world.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

EX-BARBER HEIR TO
$75,000,000 ESTATEAncestor Was Kidnaped
Son of French Duke.

Greenwich, Conn.—George Dennis of Harrison, N. Y., former barber, painter and handyman, has become heir to $75,000,000, it was stated here recently.

According to the story, which reads like fiction, George Dennis, a sailor on a British warship cruising off the coast of France during the French and Indian war, kidnaped the three-year-old son of the Duc de Longville, with the intention of extorting a ransom for his return. Because of the fortunes of war the warship had to leave hurriedly for safe waters before negotiations for the boy's return could be completed, and in consequence the lad was brought to America where, under the care of Dennis, he grew to manhood.

Not until he was on his deathbed did Dennis disclose to the boy his real identity, and at that time he left a written statement of the kidnaping episode. The boy took the name of Dennis, and while living in the vicinity of Rouses Point, a border town on Lake Champlain, he married an Indian squaw, and several children were born to them. Generations passed until today George Dennis, the Harrison barber, is the sole survivor of the family.

During the World war he enlisted in one of the American contingents as a cook and while in France he met a youth named Bertrand, son of a French barrister. Dennis disclosed to him the story of his ancestor's life. Bertrand's father became interested and started inquiries. He knew that the French government held many estates in trust for lost heirs, many of them dating back before the French revolution. The Duc de Longville had died of a broken heart soon after the kidnaping of his son.

Bertrand came to America recently and disclosed proof of the Harrison man's claim to the estate of the duke.

Adventurers Seek Gold
in Ancient Aztec City

San Francisco.—Treasures of the ancient fabled Aztec city of Bacis will be sought by a party of adventurers who will leave here soon, according to plans announced by Gen. Melville Boynton, engineer and soldier of fortune.

Twenty-four men and Miss Mayme Williamson, artist and former army nurse, will make up the party. The country into which the expedition will go is in the high and unpenetrated ranches of the Sierra Madre mountains of Mexico. The cold and difficulties of travel have deterred exploration of the region, according to General Boynton.

Headquarters will be established at Culiacan. The search for Bacis will sweep in a 300-mile circle about that point. The Aztec city contains untold riches, according to Indian legends.

Card Party Given for 3,200 Players

Cleveland, O.—Thirty-two hundred women "sat in" on what is said to be the world's largest card party here recently. Eight hundred tables covered the entire vast floor of the public auditorium when the bridge games started.

Proceeds will go to charitable work. Even if floor space was available, no more could have been taken care of, Mrs. J. Powell, secretary of the club, said.

"We had about all the card tables in town," she said.

OLDEST LIGHT IN
UNITED STATESChaplain's Interesting Facts
About Sandy Hook.

The military post of Fort Hancock, N. J., is situated on Sandy Hook, a sandy peninsula about a half mile in width and extending five miles north from the mainland of New Jersey. West of the peninsula lie Sandy Hook bay and the Navesink river. To the east is the Atlantic ocean. The north end of Sandy Hook points straight across Ambrose channel to Coney island. Sandy Hook was first surveyed in 1685, and at that time was only one-fourth its present size. More than half the present population of Fort Hancock is living on ground which, previous to 1764, was the bed of the ocean. Chaplain William R. Arnold has prepared an article for the United States Army Recruiting News, telling the history of the fort. He says: "Before 1778, Sandy Hook was connected with the highlands of Navesink by a narrow isthmus which separated Sandy Hook bay from the Navesink and Shrewsbury rivers, which had at that point mingled their waters and flowed into the Atlantic ocean through Shrewsbury inlet between what are now the towns of Highland and Seabridge. Thirty years later the river broke through the isthmus and emptied into Sandy Hook bay, allowing the ocean waves to throw up a bar across Shrewsbury inlet.

River Made Changes.

"The mouth of the Shrewsbury river changed back and forth between ocean and bay at intervals of twenty or thirty years until finally railroad and government engineers built a stone dyke nearly four miles long, which compels the Shrewsbury to run parallel to the ocean for three miles at an average distance of 300 feet and finally to empty into Sandy Hook bay less than fifty paces from the ocean shore. A bath house, erected at this point, gives its patrons a choice between salt water and fresh water, with temperatures varying from eight to ten degrees.

"Sandy Hook was discovered by Henry Hudson on Sept. 4, 1609. The title to the lands is derived from Charles II, king of England, who, disregarding the rights of the Dutch in New Netherlands, granted to his brother James, duke of York, and Richard Nicholls, the region extending from the Connecticut river to the Delaware. The United States government made its first purchase of land for military purposes in 1807. Additional purchases in 1817, and finally in 1892 brought the entire Sandy Hook peninsula into possession of the government.

Guards Hudson River.

"In 1890 the government built Fort Hancock as an important part of the coast defense protecting New York city and guarding the entrance to the navigable waters of the Hudson river. The ruins of an unfinished older fort dating from 1857 and built of immense granite blocks can be seen near the end of the hook. The most interesting structure on the hook, and surrounded by the more modern buildings of Fort Hancock, is Sandy Hook light, the oldest lighthouse in the United States, and said to be the second oldest on the western hemisphere. It is a white stone tower, 90 feet high, and shows a third order fixed white light visible 15 nautical miles. It was erected by New York merchants for the protection of ships entering the harbor, and was first lighted on Monday, June 18, 1764.

"The old lighthouse is a national landmark, and stands witness to some interesting history. In 1776, Capt. John Connon, acting under orders, destroyed the lantern in order that the British fleet might not be guided into New York bay. During the Revolution, on July 2, 1778, the army of Sir Henry Clinton retreated to Sandy Hook from the field of Monmouth courthouse, crossing the Navesink on a pontoon bridge from Gravelly Point at the foot of the highlands near what is now Parkertown, while in the horse-shoe were anchored transports and men-of-war flying the royal cross of St. George.

"Sandy Hook light and the old dwelling of the keeper was known during the Revolution as the Lighthouse fort, or Refugees' tower. The British fortified it and from there the Tory refugees made their bloody raids. Remnants of log fortifications are still to be seen. About 200 yards east of the lighthouse there is a little burial ground, where lie the soldiers and the victims of shipwrecks."

Finds Ultra-Violet Rays
Are Weight Reducers

The ultra-violet ray is equally effective as a weight reducer or producer according to Doctor Livet and Doctor Vautier, who described to the Academy of Medicine in Paris the excellent results obtained when the rays were applied to a number of obese patients, bringing about a loss of weight of from eight to twenty pounds after thirty applications. The same rays, used to tone up debilitated patients, caused them to put on flesh.

Skunks Capture a Town

At least a score of families of skunks have invaded West Chester, Pa., and are housekeeping beneath porches in several sections of the borough. The animals are causing no trouble, but control the territory adjacent to their retreats.

WRITERS MEET

Miss Sophie Kerr, Guest of Honor at Dinner at Chittenden Hotel.

Mrs. E. A. Allen, of South Court street, writer of stories for magazines, Wednesday evening attended the first matrix dinner of Theta Sigma Phi sorority at the Chittenden hotel, Columbus.

The honor guest was Miss Sophie Kerr, novelist, short story writer and former editor of a big woman's magazine, and her address to the 300 women at the dinner was most entertaining and inspiring.

The Ohio State Journal says:

"Miss Kerr took her story, 'She Didn't Like Her Looks,' and nursed it thru all the intricate processes involved before it reached print.

"Miss Kerr's stories are spontaneous, refreshing, entertaining and not too much propaganda and she is like them in real life.

"Funny little quips that gave precedence to the smell of printers' ink over Narciss Nier or Mary Garden perfume: A desire for the housewife to have a machine as marvelous as that which gives the finishing touches to the magazine more competently than human hands could do; description of a proof reader that knows all things in heaven and earth and hesitates not to call down the most gifted authors and writers; these were the hammers that drove home to the lay mind the principles that govern the making of a magazine. The initiated needed nothing save the power to enjoy.

"Never before has the big dining room of the Chittenden been filled with so many women in formal evening dress. Tables were decorated with lavender and rose, the colors of the entertaining sorority.

"Miss Kerr, Mrs. Donahey and Mrs. James J. Thomas received with Mrs. Vinton E. McVicker, president of the alumnae. Miss Amanda Thomas introduced the guests.

"An unheralded guest who was given a warm ovation was Clara Kimball Young, who gowned in ermine and shimmering yellow chiffon, appeared for a half hour and made an entertaining talk, introduced by Miss Harriet Daily, toastmaster.

"Miss Adah Clark sang, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Anawalt. After the address Miss Kerr received dozens of eager questioners and an hour after adjournment was still endeavoring to help several enthusiastic beginners.

"The honor guest appeared gowned simply in a frock of royal blue chiffon and satin with the Theta Sigma Phi pin her only ornament."

Persia Sparsely Peopled.

It is easy to overrate the land of Darius and Cyrus, Amar, and Hadiz, for Persia has not nearly as many inhabitants as Mexico. Estimates differ widely and there has never been a real census, but it is possible that in a territory equal to France, Germany, the British isles and Italy all taken together, the population does not exceed that of little Belgium. In area Persia is more than 15 times as big as Ohio, but it contains fewer than twice as many people.

AMUSEMENTS

The Paramount picture, "Zaza," an Allan Dwan production and an absorbing screen drama, proved delightful in every respect at its premier presentation at the Metropolitan theater last night. Gloria Swanson as the star, supported by able players were extremely artistic in their portrayals. "Zaza" is a splendid picture and surpasses anything Miss Swanson has heretofore done on the screen. The role of the remarkable French charac ter is one especially suited to her individual style of acting, and affords her unusual opportunities for keen emotional work of which she made the most.

H. B. Warner is Miss Swanson's leading man. Albert Shelby LeVino is author of the screen play and Hal Rosson did the photography. There are many big scenes in the production which include a dramatic episode in "The Odeon," a cafe outside of Paris an exciting hair-pulling episode between Zaza and Florianne, the fall of Zaza from a trapeze, Zaza's "love nest" and many others. "This picture is entertainment of the highest type and well worth seeing—not once, but many times. Showing again tonight and tomorrow night.

NOT SO FUNNY.

Milton Marshall and Elias Starkey were placed under arrest Tuesday on the charge of disorderly conduct. The boys had been driving an auto along the streets and turning the switch to make the engine backfire. The explosion sounds like the report of a pistol and creates a good deal of disturbance. The police intend to break up this practice. The young men appeared before Mayor Fitzpatrick this morning and plead guilty. They were fined $5 which they paid and were released.

FIND MODERN FAGIN HAS CRIME SCHOOL

Baltimore Police Say Thief Coaches Boys to Rob.

Baltimore, Md.—A school of crime in which a band of boys were taught burglary, pickpocketing and shoplifting was described by the police following a series of arrests and alleged confessions.

The teacher of the school, whom police termed a "modern Fagin," held classes nightly and taught secrets of the "underworld," they say, that he had learned during a life of petty thievery between periodic years of imprisonment.

The teacher taught his pupils well. Lieut. William Forrest declared after he had struggled with each of the young prisoners in verbal duels for hours to force them to yield the secrets of the school.

Many Thefts Solved.

More arrests are expected to clear up a series of mysterious burglaries in the wholesale district, whose cleverness for months has baffled attempts to solve them, police believed. The loot, police said, would exceed $5,000.

The known organization of the "school," they said, was something like this:

John Besisi, thirty, alleged teacher, who was confined at St. Mary's industrial school from the time he was thirteen until he was twenty-one. He since has been arrested several times, records show.

Rosario Provenzo, seventeen, at the head of the class, with a record of arraignments in juvenile court for throwing stones at trains and for petty larceny.

Joseph Auchukaitis, fifteen, also having a record, chiefly for truancy.

Frank Muffalato, fifteen, still in short trousers, who, police said, was the most hardened of the gang.

Long Battle of Wits.

Sergt. James Cain and Policeman Anthony McHale uncovered what they describe as a "modern Fagin" gang with the arrest of Provenzo.

A long battle of wits resulted in the arrest of Besisi and the other boys.

When faced with part of the alleged loot, said by police to have been found in their homes, they confessed burglarizing warehouses of the Baltimore Candy and Tobacco company and the Lee Morgan Coffee company.

The school of crime was organized so carefully, police said, that chances of the students being caught in the act were few.

The boys would enter a building near the one to be robbed, make their way to the roof and climb in the skylight of the place where the real "haul" was to be made. From a place of concealment, nearby, according to the police, the teacher would signal danger or safety with a flashlight.

Sense of "Loyalty."

Even after their arrest loyalty to Besisi was unbroken until they described how the teacher divided the spoils, Sergeant Cain said. He added: "Then they 'squawked.' They accused him of taking clocks, pistols, jewelry and other loot and selling it. They would get a few trinkets and a dollar or two to keep quiet.

"If they protested he would threaten to have them turned over to the police, they told us. They never dared refuse to do his bidding.

"The romance of having a room in Besisi's flat as a rendezvous also had its lure. They used to meet there regularly, they said, and learn how to steal without getting caught."

Awed Explorers Gaze for Three Days at Phenomena

Washington.—Robert F. Griggs, professor of botany at George Washington university, the first white man to set foot in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, Alaska, spoke on his initial trip into the valley at a meeting in the Cosmos club.

Motion pictures of the many phenomena in the valley were exhibited, and Doctor Griggs told of the many experiments made by his party. He said that when the valley was first viewed it was three days before any of the party could do more than gaze in wonder.

No living creature or any indication of plant life was found in the area covered by volcanic ash thrown off by Mt. Katmai, but on the edges of the valley, trees grow in abundance, the explorer said.

The intense heat has no effect on the perpetual snow banks that abound on the fringes of the valley, he said.

Finds North Australia Holds Many Surprises

Sydney, N. S. W.—Edward A. Cook recently completed a leisure stroll of more than 2,000 miles, as the crow flies, from Melbourne to Darwin in the north of Australia. His object was to make an examination of mid-Australia and the northern territory to substantiate his contention that those sections were not worthless wastes. He took more than 300 pictures of scenes along the route.

Speaking of his experiences with natives in northern Australia he said they appeared to be of a better class than those of the south.

"The territory is full of surprises from the pastoral viewpoint," said Mr. Cook, "being well watered and substantially grassed and timbered. Free from droughts, the much maligned north country must soon come into its own."

"GAS" FROM TREES.

Automobiles run by motive fuel from the forests and at lower cost than with gasoline, is a possibility with which automotive engineers are seriously reckoning, says American Forests and Forest Life Magazine. Alcohol from wood that is not wood but pure ethyl or grain alcohol, is the forest product engineers are studying. The alcohol is identical in chemical composition with alcohol distilled from grain or potatoes. Production of alcohol from wood is based upon the hydrolysis of wood cellulose, which in some species gives 20 to 25 per cent sugar. — Research Bureau, National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

MANINGTON TALKS

Declares Daugherty Never Visited the "Little Green House in K Street."

New York, April 10.—Howard B. Manington of Columbus, the man who leased the famous "little green house in K street," that has figured so mysteriously in the Daugherty investigation, said he returned from Europe only because the business that took him there had been finished. He admitted Ambassador Herrick had told him his presence in Washington as a witness might be desired. Manington said he rented the "little green house in K street" several years ago, but had not been in regular occupancy there since November, 1922. The late President Harding never was a guest there, nor was Harry M. Daugherty he said. Edward K. Moelan, the publisher, never visited the place, Manington declared, but William Orr, mentioned in the alleged "fixing" of the Carpenter-Lempsey fight film case, had been among the guests, and perhaps the late Jesse Smith also had been entertained. He was not sure about Smith.

Rough Oldtime "Sports."

Pugilistic encounters, dog fights, cock fights and similar performances were the ordinary forms of popular pastimes in the early part of the last century. Bull baiting was common, and even this did not afford sufficient amusement to the people in some of the northern towns, and Blackburn and Oldham exhibited a strange depravity by compelling old women to race in sacks!—Bailey's Magazine.

Steel Shavings Burn

A pile of steel shavings recently took fire at a large dynamo factory, presenting the unusual spectacle of a bonfire of steel. The shavings became heated from some rubbish burning nearby, and water proved useless in extinguishing the blazing steel. It was finally necessary to rake the pile apart in order to subdue the flames. In such a pile of steel oxidation takes place faster than the resulting heat can be carried away, and any heating from an outside source may actually lead to combustion.

Chickens and Eggs Help Improve Home

Poultry Products Favored to Increase Incomes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farm women of Charleston, county, S. C., sold 5,441 pounds of poultry and 10,388 dozen eggs during 1923, as compared with 600 pounds of market poultry and 1,000 dozen eggs in 1920. This large increase in three years was accomplished, on the part of extension workers co-operatively directed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, by constantly emphasizing the value of pure bred poultry and of the need of grading all products. The home demonstration agent rendered all possible assistance in the marketing of these products, but the good results are attributed largely to the fact that at every meeting held, no matter what subject was discussed, poultry was advised as a means of increasing the home income. Out of 138 women enrolled in home demonstration work, 70 improved their flocks by the purchase of standard-bred cockerels or baby chicks.

In addition to selling poultry, 3,337 pounds of butter and fresh vegetables, amounting to $2,368.50, were sold in the county. The money earned by the women in these ways was divided into three portions. One part was laid away for a rainy day, one part was spent in supplying special needs of the children or for food or clothing, and the third part was spent for home improvements. Among these improvements, 23 houses were remodeled by having additions, new floors, or new lighting systems. Eleven women bought gasoline irons, two made wheel trays, and four bought kitchen cabinets; 15 planted fruit trees and 138 planted local trees and shrubs to beautify the home grounds.

Alfalfa Hay Tends to Insure Strong Litters

Alfalfa hay fed to sows during the winter months tends to insure healthy litters of pigs. Alfalfa is rich in protein and minerals and furnishes these elements at low cost. There are three ways in which it can be fed: Let the sows eat it from the stack, feed it in a suitable rack, or add about five or ten pounds of chopped alfalfa or alfalfa leaves to 100 pounds of a grain mixture. The leaves can be gathered up from the barn floor where the hay is pitched from the mow.

Some suggested rations suitable for a 250-pound sow are as follows: Alfalfa hay, five or six ears of corn, one-fourth pound of tankage; alfalfa hay, two or three pounds of corn; alfalfa hay, three or four pounds of grain, one gallon of skim milk. For young gilts the proportion of tankage to corn or grain may be increased.

Whole Milk Superior for Fattening Young Calves

There is nothing quite equal to whole milk for fattening young calves. This practice provides veal of the highest quality. If one cow does not supply enough milk to give the calf all that it will consume, then two nurse cows may be provided. Make sure that the calf is confined in a box stall heavily bedded and darkened. This will prompt him to lie down a greater part of the time, and it is inactivity of the muscles, coupled with lots of milk, that makes veal of the best quality.

Comfortable Pig Gains

A fall pig that weighs 150 pounds along in February that is eating a pound and a half a day out in the open, will just about hold his own in weight. The same pig, in a warm, sheltered place, that is stimulated thereby to eat six pounds of feed, will make about a pound and a half gain per day. In the former case the pound and a half of feed, productively speaking, is lost because no gain is made from it; in the latter case the six pounds produces a pound and a half gain.

Farm Notes

Sweet clover makes ideal pasture for sheep.

Inoculation has been proven to be quite a figure in inducing clover stands to come satisfactorily.

Farmers with roadside markets should take a tip from city advertisers and start their signs several miles down the road.

Since extension work began the county agents have been responsible for 2,500,000 farmers changing their farming practices.

Kerosene emulsion is one of the oldest and most effective of home-made remedies for sucking insects. It is used in fighting sucking insects having soft bodies.

A few days spent in hauling straw and filling the gulleys in fields may pay better than an equal amount of time spent trying to grow crops where the soil is slipping away.

A good louse powder to use on cattle during cold weather is made from one-half sabadilla seed and one-half sulphur. Rub well into the wrinkles on the neck, the head and other places where lice hide.

Export of Cattle.

Live cattle were first exported to England from America in 1861, but it did not become a regular business until several years later.

Chic Clothes for Misses' Wardrobes

Velvets, Crepes, Voiles, Soft Silks and Georgettes Are in Vogue.

In the tailored styles for young people are some exceedingly smart, picturesque suits, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times. One that is especially popular this season is a kilt skirt of plaid wool, cut a length to show the knees; a tailored blouse of ponce, and a box coat of homespun in plain or mixture. This is called a three-piece suit and is made for a young lady of ten or twelve years, though the utility and chicness of the model have created a demand for it in smaller and larger sizes. With it, for the younger girls, are worn a soft felt hat with narrow brim, or an Angora tam, heavy wool stockings and flat-heel calfskin shoes. There must be no mistake about the stockings or socks and shoes, for a little lady recently admonished her mother against the impropriety of wearing silk stockings and dressy shoes with any sort of sports clothes.

These three-piece suits are done in a number of combinations, usually with the plaid skirt, which may be so conveniently worn with any jacket or blouse and which is so comfortable for indoor, every-day wear when the coat is laid aside. Varying the plaid and plain goods together, some smart little suits are made all of the homespun and tweeds, occasionally with a narrow tailored skirt. Charming costumes for more dressy occasions are made of velvet. With all these, pretty soft overblouses of crepe or ponce are worn, and many of fine white linen or muslin, that always give a girl's toilet such an appearance of crisp freshness.

Velvet is quite the rage this season, more especially for children's garments. Black is most popular for suits, coat and skirt, to be worn with any pretty waist and for the one-piece frocks for juniors and misses with which the guimpes of sheer muslin are so becoming. These, of course, must be finished with needlework, trimmed with a bit of lace, Irish, valenciennes or filet, and some of the prettiest are smocked.

Velvet for Children.
A stunning suit for a girl of fifteen is made of black velvet, the jacket and skirt banded with white rabbit fur, the blouse of white crepe de chine, with motifs and a slight edging of baby Irish lace. To complete this little fairy princess toilet is a toque and a quaint round muf of rabbit. Squirrel is used in trimming another suit of soft green, and one of Havana brown is untrimmed. To be worn with it are a soft, ribbon-trimmed beaver hat and a scarf of brown fox.

The party dress is the piece de resistance in a girl's wardrobe, from her first birthday frock to the momentous costume for her introduction to the social world. Lovely poetic things are designed for the girl who is having her first holiday from boarding school—the happy days when there is a round of festivities in her honor and her own little crowd has a full program of frolics.

For these there must be a number of semi-dress toilets for the matinee and luncheon and the many excursions about town. The velvet three-piece suit, plenty of fresh guimpes, two or three soft one-piece dresses of crepe

In color, a sports top coat and a dress coat, and then the "party" dresses, complete the equipment for a campaign that is likely to be as full of thrills as any in the years to follow.

The Useful One-Piece Frock.
One-piece frocks are designed for every occasion, the difference being a matter of material. In the midwinter models velvet is modish, it is so flattering to the complexion of youth, so serviceable equally for daytime and evening. A ravishing affair for a lady of twelve dresses her like a little cardinal in scarlet velvet, with nothing to contrast with the flaming shade. A deep plaited frill of scarlet chiffon falls from the shallow round neckline, and the frock is sleeveless.

Another model in aquamarine blue velvet is edged about the neck and quarter-length tight sleeves with squirrel, and is worn over a guimpe of fine white net, the full undersleeves of which are drawn in snugly at the waist.

With the exception of velvet, little heavy material is seen in the one-piece dresses. There is always, of course, the Peter Thompson type of outfit for athletics and outings, and the garment of serge or cheviot with bloomers in several styles, for service. But the crepes and voiles, soft silks and georgettes are almost universal in their vogue.

Simplicity is the keynote and in the best models elaboration of any kind is expressed in a touch of needlework, fine embroidery or smocking. Lace is sparingly and judiciously introduced in frocks for girls, except in those for the tots, on some of which much baby Irish and real valenciennes lace is used.

Frocks for girls at the junior age are the most difficult to select. When she is midway between girlhood and young ladyhood and growing by leaps and bounds she is a real problem in dressing. That she may appear correct and that she may be comfortable in her own consciousness as well as in her body and look her best as every girl at her age wishes to do, is matter for thought and taste and an infinite sense of the order and fitness of things. Happily, the present fashion is one of straight lines and little trimming, of soft materials made so that every girl, even she that is awkward, may look and feel at ease.

Crepes in Lovely Shades.
The crepes are adapted to these modes and are shown in lovely shades of the popular colors, browns and blues, greens, beige, rose, yellow and orchid. An engaging afternoon frock for a girl of fourteen or fifteen is worked out in pale green crepe de chine, the blouse long and fitted loosely. The bottom of the skirt, which is gathered quite full at the belt, is finished with a deep hem. The round neck and the cuffs of the elbow sleeves are stitched with a slender pattern of hand embroidery in shades of green floss. A sash of wide ribbon in Roman colors is wound about the waist and tied in a loose knot at one side. A tassel of mixed colors finishes each end of the sash.

There is a sentiment toward the revival of sheer muslin and tulle for dancing frocks such as were worn in the airy dances of years ago. But the dance of today is not the airy kind, and but a few exclusive models have found favor among the misses of individual taste. These are full-skirted, quaint frocks, with many ruffles of the material or frills of delicate lace.

Some fairylike skirts are of tulle with several flounces overlapping and very full. One, all white, has each narrow ruffle edged with a single line of silver; with a ruffle around the neck and tiny puffed sleeves. Little slippers of silver, and a sash of silver ribbon fastened with a petite nosegay of rosebuds and forget-me-nots create a picture to grace any day.

The most popular evening dress for girls between the ages of six and sixteen is of crepe or georgette, with the slightest suggestion of trimming. A sweetly pretty model shown by an exclusive shop is of white crepe, with long blouse and slightly draped skirt, boot-top length, the dress having a design in white ribbon of flowers and a trailing vine, extending from one shoulder to the knee.

Practical Things for Kiddies.
In the land of fashions in miniature there is everything dainty and pretty and lovable. Kiddies wear practical duds nowadays, rompers and pinafores and things for comfort. But many things are picturesque, too, and a trip through a little folks' bazaar is one of delight. Winter outfits display knitted slip-ons, in bright colors, silk or wool, and four-piece outfits, knickers, sweaters, cap and leggings that are knitted or woven of angora wool in beautiful color combinations. Tiny top coats are of the softest wool, and some are trimmed with fur, squirrel or rabbit; and the fur coats are cunning.

The tendency in the styles for the littlest ones is also toward simplicity. A touch here and there of peasant needlework in bright colors is one variation of the all-white that we associate with the dress of a child.

The French will always send little garments that have something their most faithful copyists seem not to put into their young people's clothes.

Some Very Old Trees
Yew trees grow to a great age. Those at Torentain's abbey, Yorkshire, England, were old in 1132. California has trees thousands of years old in the Mariposa grove, and baobab trees in Africa are over four centuries old.

Prevents Dampness.
The best way of preventing a bed from becoming damp if left for a few weeks, is to "make" it and then put a blanket all over the top. Take it off before using the bed, and you'll find it quite dry.

Islamic Creed.
The Islam creed embraces belief in the prophets and apostles Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Jesus and Mohammed, but the Moslems consider Mohammed the "most excellent creature of God."

Perfumes Without Grease.
A. Verley, a chemist of Isle-Saint-Denis, France, has patented a process of extracting perfume from flowers by using powdered wood charcoal instead of grease as an absorbent, and then washing the charcoal in alcohol.

A Song of Mountains

The mountains vast my refuge are,
My strength and solace sure are they;
I sight their grizzly peaks afar,
And from my heart care falls away;
I lie their granite arms within,
And once again my soul is free;
From everlasting have they been,
To everlasting shall they be!

Soothed by their solemn stillnesses,
Rest, thou, my heart, and cease thy pain!

Cast off, my soul, thy illnesses,
Lest thou their mysteries profane!
Once more their peace shall dwell within

My heart, once more my soul be free,
From everlasting have they been,
To everlasting shall they be!

Largest Bell in World Made in Russia in 1733

There are two bells in Moscow famous for their size. The "Tsar Kolokol," which is Russian for "king of bells," was cast in 1733, and is the largest bell in the world. It is several feet in thickness, 21 feet high, 22 feet in diameter and weighs over 400,000 pounds.

People and communities all over Russia contributed metal to be used in casting this monstrous bell. But it seems that the bell was never rung.

Some say it was cracked in the furnace and was hung only as a curiosity; others say the supports gave way as it was being raised and that the bell crashed to the ground. Still others assert that a few years after it was hung fire destroyed the supports. At any rate the bell fell and a huge fragment seven feet high and weighing eleven tons was broken from the side. For over a hundred years it was left partially buried in the earth where it fell, but in 1836 Emperor Nicholas had it raised and placed on a platform in the Kremlin, where until the Russian revolution it served as the dome of a chapel, the broken side being used for a door.

The other famous bell at Moscow was given to St. John's cathedral by Czar Boris Godunoff, and weighs about 128 tons. It is considered the largest bell in actual use.—Detroit News.

Toothbrushes Found on Japs Puzzled Russians

In 1732 in Leipzig, John Henry Zedler began the publication of a monumental encyclopedia which grew to 63 volumes and was the storehouse of all knowledge of that time. In volume 60 of this work, which saw daylight in 1740, the first known mention of a toothbrush is found.

This useful little article must have been quite unknown, since many works on dentistry written after that time prescribe certain roots or pieces of rags for cleaning teeth.

Joseph de la Malle published in Paris about 1818 a book on the care of teeth for ladies, in which the oldest known illustration of a toothbrush appears with bristles on both ends of the handle.

During the Russian-Japanese war the kits of the dead Japanese soldiers offered one of the greatest surprises for the simple sons of the czar's realm. They found in every Japanese kit a small white brush on a long, narrow handle. The brush was useless, judged by all standards of the Russian peasant. It was too small to blacken boots or scrub floors with, and not practical to clean the hair or clothes. This mysterious article was the toothbrush.—Detroit News.

A Happy Ending

Before going to work for the movie concern the eminent author had stipulated that his scenario must be produced as written without the alteration of one word. It was with great irritation accordingly that he received suggestions from the feminine star, the leading man, the director, the camera man and the office boy. The crowning blow came when the producer sent for him and said: "But your hero starves. We must have a happy ending."

"All right. I'll make him eat him self to death."

One on Mother

"Edith," said a mother to her little daughter, "you ought to be ashamed to speak to your father so impertinently. I am sure you never heard me talk to him in that manner."

"No," replied the rebellious infant, "but you choosed him and I didn't."

Cruel

Doris—When Tom proposed to me three years ago I refused him, and he said it would be the death of him.

Maud—Well, that's not so, for he proposed to me last night and I accepted him.

Doris—He must have meant a living death.

PROFITEERS IN GERMANY

Should Not be Pretext for Withholding Food From Starving.

Middle Classes in Germany, as in Other Countries, Support Benevolences—Cannot Produce Enough Food to Feed Her Own People.

Profiteers are taking their toll from the famine in Germany but their activities should not be as a pretext for withholding food from the people upon which they are preying, Professor Homer L. Morris, head of the economics department of Earlham college and investigator in Germany for the American Society of Friends (Quakers) declared in an address in Columbus recently.

"In Germany, as in every other country which took part in the war, these profiteers appeared and the German government has been no more successful in coping with them than were the other countries.

"The sound government in America had a bitter fight against these people and did not emerge unscathed. Germany does not have a sound or stable government and at times the profiteers have shown the greater strength. Laws have been passed against them but the government, dependent upon an impoverished, half-fed people, has not been able to enforce them.

"Speculation in German marks, which has caused a great deal of the trouble, has been legislated against but easy means of dodging the laws have been found and they have never been enforced.

"It is the middle classes, the people of moderate wealth, who support benevolences in all countries and this class of people in Germany has done its utmost. Men of great wealth in the country are not carrying their proportionate share of the burden. This statement cannot be denied, but the same circumstance has been true in other countries which required relief and might be true were America to be in the same situation tomorrow.

"The German farmers have been criticised in some places for dealing with these profiteers but considering the circumstances that to do otherwise would amount to giving away their products they cannot be reasonably blamed.

"The laboring people in Germany have been paid with paper marks which decline in value so rapidly the farmers will not accept them. The profiteers get foreign money with which to buy food products and then hold them for exorbitant profits. German farmers are contributing great stores of food supplies to the industrial centers, however, and thousands of children from the cities have been taken to the farms to live until the famine is over."

"The food shortage which Germany faces is the same shortage faced by the other central European countries except that Germany being much more of an industrial country than the others is harder hit," Professor Morris said in his address before the ministerial association.

"Before the war Germany produced 75 per cent of her food supply. This meant that 15,000,000 of her people were dependent upon imported food. In 1922 foods imported were but 43 per cent of the amount imported in 1913. This would mean a great shortage of food unless it was made up by increased production within the country. As a matter of fact domestic production has fallen off in Germany as it has fallen off in Austria, Poland and other central European countries. In 1922 Germany produced but 48 per cent of a normal wheat crop, 52 per cent of a rye crop, 47 per cent of a normal wheat crop 52 per cent of rye crop, 47 per cent of a normal crop of oats and 50 per cent of its usual sugar beet crop.

"Altho an attempt is being made to give only temporary relief until the fall harvest the country will face the same situation again next year unless her industries are reorganized. Germany cannot produce food enough to feed her own people and the only way she can become self supporting again is to start manufacturing products which may be exchanged in other countries for food supplies."
